Auto Scaling is a service that automatically adjusts the number of EC2 instances in your fleet based on your application's current needs. Which of the following is a valid use case for Auto Scaling?

- A. To run a batch job that requires a fixed number of instances.
- B. To run a web application that has a variable number of users.
- C. To run a database that requires a fixed number of instances.
- D. To run a service that requires a fixed number of instances.

Answer: D

Explanation:

Auto Scaling is a service that automatically adjusts the number of EC2 instances in your fleet based on your application's current needs. Auto Scaling is designed to help you manage your fleet of EC2 instances. It can automatically launch, terminate, and replace instances to maintain the desired capacity of your fleet. Auto Scaling can be used to run a variety of applications, including web applications, batch jobs, and databases. NEW QUESTION: 2

How is the lost time rate calculated?

- A. Number of lost time accidents divided by 200,000
- B. Number of OSHA recordables divided by 200,000
- C. Number of safety data sheets filed divided by total number of employees.
- D. Number of lost days per hundred employees divided by total number of employees, then multiplied by 100

Answer: A

Explanation:

Explanation: The lost time rate is calculated by dividing the number of lost time accidents by 200,000. The number 200,000 is chosen because it is the number of hours worked by a hundred employees (given forty hours a week and fifty weeks a year). Answer choice A is the formula for calculating the lost work day index (LWDI). For this measure, only those days lost to personal injury are counted. Answer choice C is the formula for the OSHA recordable rate. Lost time rate, LWDI, and OSHA recordable rate are the most common methods of calculating the safety of a work site.
