NEW QUESTION: 4

What is accomplished in the identification phase of incident handling?

- A. defining the limits of your authority related to a security event
- B. identifying source and destination IP addresses
- C. determining that a security event has occurred
- D. determining the responsible user

Answer: C

Explanation:

From Cisco SECOPS Elearning course Identification phase is referenced as 'Identification: The SOC analyst performs continuous monitoring, and active cyber threat hunting. When a true positive incident has been detected, the incident response team is activated. During the investigation process, the SOC analyst or the incident response team may also contact the CERT/CC (or other security intelligence sources), which tracks Internet security activity and has the most current threat information.'
