The NIST's definition of cloud computing defines the service models as follows:[2] + Software as a Service (SaaS). The capability provided to the consumer is to use the provider's applications running on a cloud infrastructure. The applications are accessible from various client devices through either a thin client interface, such as a web browser (e.g., web-based email), or a program interface. The consumer does not manage or control the underlying cloud infrastructure including network, servers, operating systems, storage, or even individual application capabilities, with the possible exception of limited user-specific application configuration settings.

+ Platform as a Service (PaaS). The capability provided to the consumer is to deploy onto the cloud infrastructure consumer-created or acquired applications created using programming languages, libraries, services, and tools supported by the provider. The consumer does not manage or control the underlying cloud infrastructure including network, servers, operating systems, or storage, but has control over the deployed applications and possibly configuration settings for the application-hosting environment.

+ Infrastructure as a Service (IaaS). The capability provided to the consumer is to provision processing, storage, networks, and other fundamental computing resources where the consumer is able to deploy and run arbitrary software, which can include operating systems and applications. The consumer does not manage or control the underlying cloud infrastructure but has control over operating systems, storage, and deployed applications; and possibly limited control of select networking components (e.g., host firewalls).

The MSP_Project_Timesheet virtual cube is used to combine the Assignment Timephased, Resource Timephased, and EPM Timesheet cubes. Answer option B is incorrect. The MSP_PORTFOLIO_ANALYZER virtual cube is a combination of the assignment timephased and resource timephased cubes. The MSP_Portfolio_Analyzer cube is used to combine the Assignment Timephased and Resource Timephased cubes. The Portfolio Analyzer cube is also backward compatible with the Project Server 2003 MSP_Portfolio_Analyzer cube. What is the risk management? The risk management is considered as the identification, assessment, and prioritization of risks. It is followed by coordinated and economical application of resources to minimize, monitor, and control the probability and/or impact of unfortunate events or to maximize the realization of opportunities. Risks can come from uncertainty in financial markets, project failures, legal liabilities, credit risk, accidents, natural causes and disasters as well as deliberate attacks from an adversary. What is the issue management? The issue management is used to help organize and prioritize the current challenges that threaten project success. They are different from the risks in the way that they have already occurred and usually require some immediate attention. Instead of languishing in inaction, issues are often taken care of quickly by documenting, analyzing, and assigning them to be resolved. Issue management should be used by all projects to help resolve what is important versus what is not.
