- B. When PIM snooping is not enabled, unicast flooding occurs on the switch that interconnects the PIM-enabled routers.
- C. Forwarding table overflow prevents new MAC addresses from being learned, and packets destined to those MAC addresses are flooded until space becomes available in the forwarding table.

Economic capital under the Earnings Volatility approach is calculated as:

- A. Earnings under the worst case scenario at a given confidence level/Required rate of return for the firm
- B. Expected earnings/Specific risk premium for the firm
- C. Expected earnings/Required rate of return for the firm
- D. [Expected earnings less Earnings under the worst case scenario at a given confidence level]/Required rate of return for the firm

Answer: D

Explanation:

The Earnings Volatility approach to calculating economic capital is a top down approach that considers economic capital as being the capital required to make for the worst case fall in earnings, and calculates EC as equal to the worst case decrease in earnings capitalized at the rate of return expected of the firm. The worst case decrease in earnings, or the earnings-at-risk can only be stated at a given confidence level, and is equal to the Expected Earnings less Earnings under the worst case scenario.
